Hello and Goodbye to City Council members

With the beginning of a new year, the Spanish Fork City Council welcomes the new elected officials: Rod Dart, Richard Davis and Jens Nielson. With the addition of these council members, we also say goodbye to three dedicated council members: Matt Barber, Seth Sorensen, and Chris Wadsworth. The new officials will take the oath of office on January 8, the Councils' first meeting in January. They will be sworn into office by Kent Clark, City Recorder. You can come to the council chambers at 6:00 pm or watch it live on Spanish Fork 17.

At the December 18 City Council Meeting, Mayor Joe Thomas recognized the efforts of our outgoing council members. Mayor Thomas specifically thanked each council member for their desire to serve the community, a task which demands more time than many may know.

Mayor Thomas recognized Councilmember Barber's work on the Golf Course, numerous cost saving RFP's, and performance evaluations. Mayor Thomas also recognized Councilmember Sorensen for his work to bring on quality staff, have quality programs for youth and the business community with the Chamber of Commerce. Finally, Mayor Thomas recognized Councilmember Wadsworth for his initiative to secure federal funding for the Spanish Fork River Reclamation project and trails construction and his work on the trails committee.

devoted countless hours of service to the community during the past four years and have made Spanish Fork City a better place because of their service. Thank you gentlemen for your time and service.

To the three new councilmembers, we say welcome and best of luck as you begin your time to serve. We know that you will do your best to keep our community as one of the best in all of Utah.
